

In the Media: Trendy Mom.com - October 3rd, 2007

MONDAY, OCTOBER 01, 2007

● ● ● Belle Baby Carriers: A Great Marriage of Engineering and Design

Baby carriers are indispensable lifesavers for new moms. Like most moms that had a baby in 2003, I used a Bjorn with mine. Maya lived in it for the first six months, sleeping, eating, lounging -- all in the Bjorn. In fact, we had two in the house between my giant husband and me, so that we would never had to adjust the straps.

Though the Bjorn was the best in the market at the time and quite comfortable, I griped: it was ugly. And it wasn't even that comfortable after an hour of lugging around a 15 pound "newborn."

Since then, baby carriers with great looking designs have flooded the market. However, very few can boast a weight-distribution system worthy of rock climbing technology. Add to that the ultra soft and stain-resistant microsuede -- now that's a must have for any new mom: The Belle Baby Carrier from engineers at Inventista.

New to the market and already a hit with the parents in the know, Belle Baby Carriers are available in beautiful colors and fun prints from $89.95. Buy here at the company's secure online store or at one of your favorite retailers. It's definitely going on my wish list for baby number two.

Posted by Ahu at 9:45 PM 